REMINISCING WITH MYRNA: THINKING ABOUT AN OLD FRIEND OF DIGHTON HISTORY – ELAINE VARLEY, DIGHTON'S SECOND TOWN HISTORIAN, AND THE DIGHTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY

This poem was written shortly before Elaine Varley's passing in 2014 by a gentleman who has since also left us. Her efforts as Town Historian were mighty – she was always 'hands on' – and many of the Historical Societies' treasures came there when Elaine was involved. She worked closely with our first Historian, Helen Lane, and she was instrumental in acquiring the Winslow-Davis House which now houses the Dighton Historical Society Museum. She took many photographs, wrote extensively and made several 'movie' trips through and about Dighton, saving a wealth of information for us to share.

Please enjoy this poetic tribute to the Historical society and to a true Dightonian who is very much missed by those who knew her.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY by Jack Torres

I took a trip the other day

I went back in the past.

The memories of my childhood

Came back to me real fast.

I looked at many different pictures

Of people I once knew;

Some from 50 years ago,

Some were fairly new.

Some brought tears to my eyes

Of friends who had passed away;

Some were pictures of our town

In the Good Old Days.

I viewed a lot of scrapbooks

About the way things used to be –

The grocery stores we used to have

That meant so much to me.

In the southern part of our town

Gas stations we had three;

We had one Dr. Souza, who charged a modest fee.

Ernie shared his barber shop

Along with Earle's TV;

Art and Emile's hardware store

Was quite a place to see.

The ice cream parlor on the corner

Was called The Cornerette;

The Hillview Restaurant down the street

Was the best food you could get.

Rudy Christenson's Flower Shop

Handled everybody's needs.

The train still traveled down the tracks

Bringing grain and seed.

If you want to take a journey back,

A journey that is free,

The Historical Society is the place to go,

Elaine Varley is the one to see.

Visit Elaine and listen carefully,

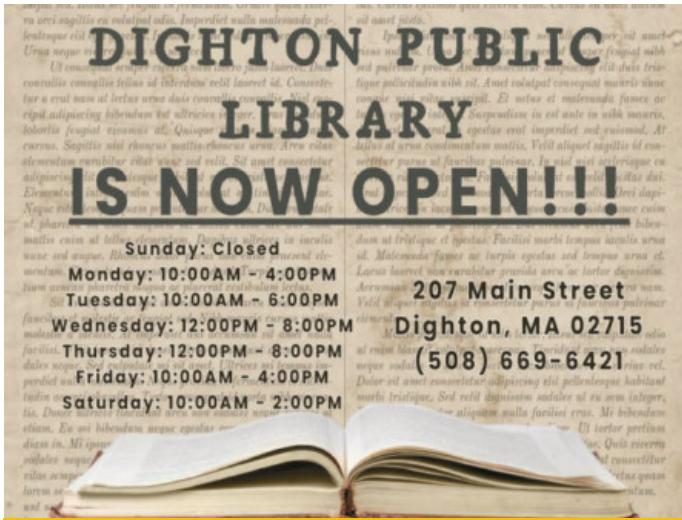

She'll take you back in time.

Your heart will surely enjoy this trip,

And also, will your mind

Before I close out this somewhat shortened monthly Reminisce article, I MUST correct a change that was made by the computer in the piece I wrote for September's Reminisce article about my memories of WWII and my father. Dad's army outfit was the AMERICAL DIVISION – apparently the computer thought I had made a spelling error. I had not. It was a named outfit, comprised in January of 1941. The correct name stands for AMERI (for America) and CAL (for New Caledonia): The AMERICAL DIVISON. So sorry, Daddy, and everyone, about this error – believe me, it was NOT mine!

Wishing everyone a great early Fall with bright skies and happy days. Take care, be well – I'll be back in November. Very sincerely, Myrna

BOOK DETAILS BY DIGHTON'S OWN , VINCENT HEBERT JR'S

My Stranger, My Grandfather

This is a very personal work and based on a weathered document he found in his basement. That document was awarded to his grandfather for being “Wounded in the Great War”, that being World War I. Vinnie never knew his grandfather and finding that 100 year old document sent him on a journey to discover his grandfather, the battles he fought in World War I and what happened to him when he came home from the killing fields of France. It resulted in a Purple Heart being awarded to his grandfather posthumously 105 years later. Told without reservation by his grandson, it is a tale of a deeply flawed and troubled man who saw horrors we can only imagine.

Come and meet Dighton's own, Vinnie Hebert! You'll have the opportunity to listen to a book reading, purchase a book(s) and get your book signed!

Into the Depths and Other Stories of the Strange and Macabre

A terrifying collection of stories bound to keep you up at night. Ancient, depraved peoples practicing abhorrent rites, red-eyed monsters, lethal injection, madmen, wild cast-offs, dystopian societies and ghosts all come together in this frightening anthology. Enter a world where all is not as it seems, and horror is just around the bend, or in the mountains, or in the cellar or next door. These and other tales are designed to frighten and fear the horror that lurks around us. From classic horror to science fiction, these stories will chill the bone.

Life's Blood

His latest book, this is set in Rhode Island. Ritualistic murders are being committed in Rhode Island in 1995. There are no clues, no motive. But these are eerily the same as the child murders Frank Grasselli investigated in 1985, ten years prior, in South Carolina. He put that killer on death row. He thought that was the end of it. Now it's happening again. In the same gruesome manner.

As the murders pile up, Frank discovers a horror he never thought possible. With the help of a Brown University professor of Religious Studies, Frank follows the clues and delves into an ancient, dark world to find a serial killer...and the terrifying secret behind the murders.
